EFDA Report

Removing EFDAs from the endangered species list

Alumni of Manor's Expanded Functions Dental Assisting (EFDA) Program may have had to rethink their line of work last year if not for the outstanding effort of several members of the Manor community, who stepped up to insure the continuation of one of the College's most popular and respected programs.

With the signing of Act 160 into law this past January, Manor Junior College celebrated months of hard work dedicated to guaranteeing that EFDA graduates could keep their careers, and their state certification.

In December 1993, the State Board of Dentistry created a regulation that would eliminate the use of EFDAs. Cheryl Janssen '87, director of Manor's EFDA Program, recognized that if this regulation was passed into law, a popular and extremely worthwile program accredited by the American Dental Association and the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, would have to be discontinued.

Manor graduates, especially our own EFDA graduates, realize that EFDAs have become an integral part of many dental offices, performing intraoral reversible procedures such as placing restorative materials in patients' teeth, taking x-rays and assisting dentists in chairside four-handed procedures. These functions have been performed by EFDAs since 1968.

With the support of local dentists, Janssen and Robin Holmes, RHD, Esq., attorney for the Dental Hygiene Association, submitted language for an EFDA bill to Senator Stewart Greenleaf (R-12), defining the scope of EFDA's responsibilities and mandating education and certification of all future EFDAs.

According to Janssen, the entire legal process was difficult. "One of my more tense days was near the end of the proceedings, when passage of the bill was still uncertain," said Janssen. "I went door-to-door in the Capitol explaining the issues and handing out flyers to legislators.

"Fortunately, the legislature received me well," Janssen continued. "Representatives William W. Reiger (D-179), Philadelphia, and William R. Lloyd, Jr. (D-69), Somerset County, were pivotal in the passage of Act 160."

The passage of the bill saved the jobs of thousands of practicing EFDAs. Janssen stressed that, for the first time, the outcome was achieved through a joint effort of the Pennsylvania Dental Association, the Pennsylvania Dental Hygiene Association and the EFDAs.

Several area dentists worked tirelessly to insure the future of EFDAs, recognizing their value in a managed healthcare system.

"EFDAs allow large practices to maintain individualized quality care for patients," said Janssen.

Since January, Janssen has been working with the Pennsylvania Board of Dentistry regarding procedures for statewide examination and the implementation of EFDA certification. Janssen's credentials as a once-practicing EFDA who moved into the field of dental practice management impressed legislators. "I believe in the profession," said Janssen.

Manor College President, Sister Mary Cecilia Jurasinski, OSBM, said, "Without Janssen's persistence and dedication, as well as support from Drs. Michael Cichetti and Philip Siegel, of Manor's Dental Health Center, Act 160 would not be law." ■

Spring Gala '95

And a good time was had by all...

John Kerr, Jr.,(l.) currently a student at Manor, attended the Gala with his father, John Kerr, a CPA member , and his mother, Eleanor Birdsong (r.).

Some 200 members of the Manor College community were treated to an elegant evening of dinner, dancing and a live auction at the 6th Annual Springtime Gala on April 22 at the elegant Huntingdon Valley Country Club.

Faculty, staff, administration, Board of Trustee members, CPA members, friends of the College and alumni attended one of the College's major fund-raising events of the year on a beautiful spring day.

Following a cocktail hour, which afforded attendees time to enjoy the scenic view from the Club's veranda or browse through the 30 auction packages on display, guests dined on prime rib or salmon in the Club's ample dining room.

Presided over by Master of Ceremonies Edwin Biagas, a member of the College's CPA, this year's event was a financial success, with revenues collected from the sales of a trip raffle, the BIG RAFFLE and the auction. These proceeds will be used to defray the cost of the College's Library Computerization Project.

With the furious pace only a professional auctioneer can inspire, Gala guests this year participated in a live auction. Some 30 packages were available for bidding -- vacation, dining and theatre packages, home furnishings packages, art work, hobby and handy-man items and sports and concert packages.

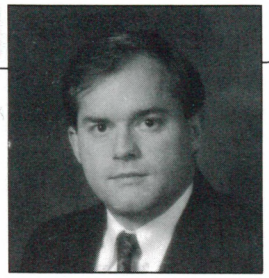
Mary Kilroy '58 (center), a member of Manor's Development Committee, chats with Development Director Tom McKittrick.

Guests also took a chance on the trip raffle -- airline tickets to anywhere in the continental U.S. -- and the BIG RAFFLE. With the best odds in town, for $50 risk-takers had seven chances in 200 to win a cash prize, including the grand prize of $2,500.

Plans are already underway for next year's event, and alumni are invited and encouraged to attend. In fact, many Manor College alumni who were in attendance this year are pictured on this page. So why don't the rest of you join us in 1996 -- you may find your picture on this page next year! ■

Development

A letter from the Development Director



Dear Alumni,

This has been an excellent year for Development in that the department has seen a renewed alumni spirit. We hope that this spirit will fuel all the activities and events that we have planned for Manor's alumni.

As many of you already know, the official Manor Junior College alumni directory is now in production and scheduled for release in early 1996. With your help, the directory will be an excellent resource for locating and rekindling friendships with former classmates.

Alumni spirit was exhibited last March, when we held a phonathon asking former students to support the College's Annual Fund and renew their ties with Manor. Alumni giving increased by more than 75 percent this year thanks to your contributions. Plans are already underway to rejuvenate the Manor Junior College Alumni Association and organize more alumni events on and off campus. Stay tuned.

So, as we prepare for Manor's 50th Anniversary in 1997, we need the support of you -- Manor's alumni. We need your ideas, your continued good will and your moral support. Even though Manor Junior College's programs, facilities and campus have expanded and grown since you were a student here; one thing has stayed the same -- the College's commitment to providing students with the personalized and practical education and values that they will need to succeed in today's world.

Most sincerely,

Thomas S. McKittrick

Director of Development

"Phoning homes"

Some 26 Manor College volunteers spent much of the week of March 12 - 19 on the phone with alumni soliciting support for the annual fund during the first alumni phonathon in several years.

The success of the phonathon would not have been possible without the generous donations of time by members of the Manor Community. Our Development Director would like to thank the following students who, in addition to many members of Manor's faculty and staff, made the program possible:

Paul Diaz
Sarah Gawlinski
Kelly Krivulka
Phil Marucci
Sean McGranaghan
Maureen McHale
Cheryl Murawski
Kristen Rose
Emily Wesner
Natalie S. Stusyk '94

Another phonathon is scheduled for the end of March, 1996. Alumni are always encouraged to participate through monetary donations, when contacted, or by donating time.

Alumni giving was up 75 percent in 1995, totaling nearly $5,000 in donations to the College's Alumni Appeal. Thanks to the following Manor alumni, who gave to the College between July 1, 1994 and June 30, 1995 :

Graduation '95

Teacher Honored

Beloved teacher's retirement does not go unnoticed

Learning Center Director John Boyd retired this year, but not before the Manor College community could show its appreciation by announcing his nomination for the Outstanding Service to Developmental Students Award during the graduation ceremonies on May 11.

Numerous letters from Manor alumni, as well as faculty and staff, led to Boyd's nomination for this nationally held award, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association of Developmental Educators.

John Boyd joined the Manor College community in 1985 when he came on board as the director of a Learning Center that did not yet exist, but which he created.

"He developed Manor's Learning Center from nothing," said Jane L. Gee, director of Manor's English as a Second Language Program. "Under his guidance, it has grown from a converted locker room to a fully equipped resource center."

Besides giving the Learning Center its physical life, John gave it its heart and soul.

"I have often had the opportunity to observe how John manages the Center," said Perky Cohen, an adjunct English professor at Manor. "The room is frequently a hub of frantic students trying to get the computers to respond, each student wanting John's immediate attention. Amazingly, John finds time to calmly help each person.

"There seems to be a pervasive, calm industriousness in the Learning Center whenever John is present," Cohen said.

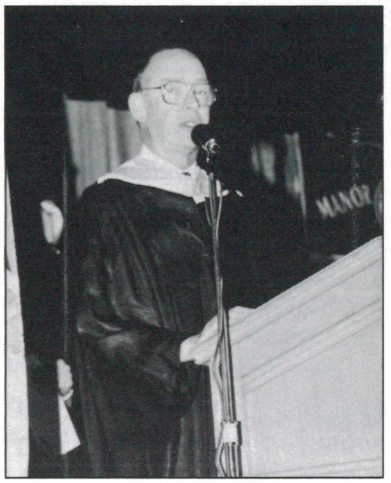
"John has a great sense of humor that lightens up the teacher/student relationship," said Academic Dean Sally Mydlowec. "Students thrive on that non-threatening atmosphere."

Apparently, Boyd's students agree.

"When I came to MJC, my English was not proficient enough to attend a four-year school," wrote Nelly Manrique, a former student of Boyd's. "With Mr. Boyd's dedication, and my willingness to learn, I went from taking only English courses to taking courses pertaining to my major. I then transferred to Drexel University, where I am currently studying accounting."

One of Manor's many non-traditional students, Eileen Donnelly, wrote, "Mr. Boyd has been an unending miracle for me."

"I always saw him praise students for what they could do, never for what they couldn't do," wrote Donna Donat, another former student. "As I become a teacher, I only hope that I can have the patience and understanding that Mr. Boyd posesses. Every student should have the opportunity to have a Mr. Boyd for a teacher." ■



John Boyd graciously accepts his nomination for the Outstanding Service to Developmental Students Award during graduation.

"If I am worthy of all these nice things being said about me, it is only because of the people that have surrounded me during my time here," he said.

Graduation '95

"Go forth from Manor to touch the world..."

One hundred nine students turned a page on May 11, during the College's 47th Annual Commencement Exercises, making the transition from Manor students to Manor alumni.

Of the graduates, 22 received Associate of Arts degrees and 83 were awarded Associate of Science degrees, while three students received Diplomas and one student received a Certificate of Completion.

But before the Class of '95 could move on to the next chapter of its life, College President Sister Mary Cecilia Jurasinski, OSBM, had words of wisdom, and a challenge, to impart.

"We have become a fearful people," said Sister Cecilia, in a particularly pointed, and poignant, speech. "We are afraid of being mugged, of losing our jobs, of getting cancer. We were not always that way," she reminded the capacity crowd in the Mother of Perpetual Help Hall.

"The challenge is to go beyond our fears to the core of our being where there is hope and love," Sister Cecilia said. " You can overcome anything. Go forth from Manor to touch the world." ■

Guest Speaker

Challenge posed: Seek the Truth

Be people who care; people who believe.

That was the challenge presented to 109 Manor graduates by guest speaker, Sister Mary Scullion, RSM, during the 47th Annual Commenecement Exercises, held May 11 at the College.

Advising the group that they are about to embark on,"a journey into a world that values a person by his or her productivity alone; a society where spiritual values have almost vanished." Sister Mary Scullion prevailed on the graduates to be "people of vision" who will make a difference.

Known throughout the area for her humanitarian efforts, Sister Mary Scullion has been involved in service work and advocacy for homeless and mentally ill persons since 1978.

Having co-founded Women of Hope in 1985, providing permanent residences and support services for homeless mentally ill women, she helped found the Outreach Coordination Center in 1988, an innovative program coordinating private and public agencies doing outreach to chronically homeless persons in Center City Philadelphia.

In 1988, Sister Mary Scullion helped start Project HOME (Housing, Opportunities, Medical Care, Education). Project HOME provides residential and rehabilitative services, enabling chronically ill persons to break the cycle of homelessness.

Sister Mary Scullion has won numerous awards for her work, including the 1992 Philadelphia Award. ■

Ceremonies

Rites of Passage

A traditional rite-of-passage for Allied Health/Science/Math students is the annual Pinning Ceremony.

On Sunday, March 12, 27 students in the Expanded Functions Dental Assisting, Medical Laboratory Technician and Veterinary Technology Programs took part in the Pinning Ceremony. Students recited their respective oaths, acknowledging their responsibilities and pledging their loyalty and dedication to their chosen professions. Students also received certificates for outstanding academic achievement. ■

Honor Society Inductions

April 2 marked the induction of 22 Manor College students into the National Honor Society for junior colleges, Phi Theta Kappa, and 16 to the National Business Honor Society, Alpha Beta Gamma.

Established in 1918 to recognize superior two-year college students, Phi Theta Kappa has 889 active chapters in co-educational junior colleges in all 50 states and abroad. Manor Junior College's Xi Chi chapter was established in 1966.

Alpha Beta Gamma is a National Business Honor Society established in 1970 to recognize and encourage scholarship among college students in business curricula.

Since its formation, over 15,000 students from public and private two-year colleges have been initiated into the society. ■

Business Awards

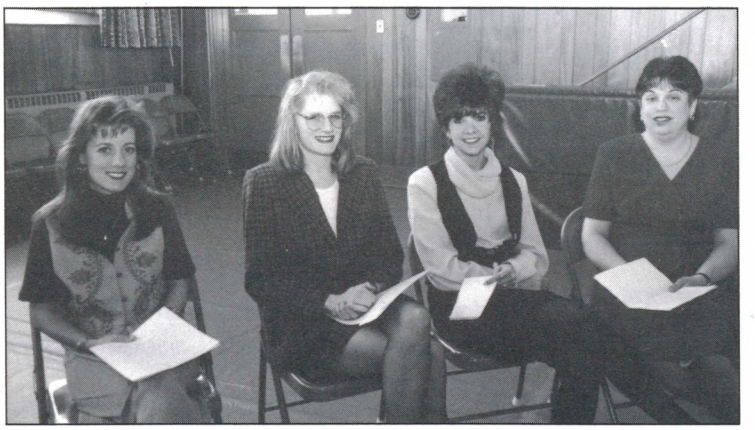
Business Division names cream of the crop

Alumni return to impart words of wisdom

Students in the Business Division benefitted from the experience and "real world" knowledge offered by three Manor College alumni who returned to campus as guest speakers when the division honored its own at the 12th Annual Business Awards on April 5.

With awards presented in Accounting/Business Administration, Court Reporting and Secretarial/Office Technology, students were recognized in categories such as Outstanding Freshman and Sophomore, Most Improved Student and Highest Typing Speed. In addition, the Jeanne B. Wurtz Computer Science Award, a congeniality award and the Ben Shuman Award from the Pennsylvania Court Reporter Association, were presented. See the side bar at right for a complete listing of award winners.

"In deciding on the program's agenda, I spoke to a number of students and asked them what kind of guest speaker they would like to have," said Business Division Chairperson Joanna Seemiller. "They thought they would benefit most from hearing about the actual post-graduate experiences of Manor alumni working in the field. I thought it was a great idea," Seemiller said. ■



Gina Damiani-Scheetz '91 (pictured above, left), a graduate of the Court Reporting program, encouraged court reporting students not to get discouraged and told them that the only way to hone their skills is to practice, practice, practice.

Working as a freelance court reporter for such agencies as Montco Reporting Service in Norristown, Gina is a Registered Professional Reporter. A loyal alumna, Gina accompanies the College's Admissions office to high school recruiting events, making presentations about court reporting on behalf of Manor.

Tricia said Manor changed her outlook on school and education in general, because the people were so helpful, which inspired her to continue her education.

Also pictured far right: Esther T. Goldman, director, Secretarial Services, Business Division.

Jacqueline Abramek '94 (pictured 2nd from right), in her speech, urged secretarial students to be flexible and not to sell shorthand short, so to speak, as she has found the skill quite useful.

A graduate of the Legal Secretarial program, Jacqueline was hired by the law firm Willig, Williams & Davidson as a result of her externship and has since received two promotions. Jacqueline was president of Alpha Beta Gamma, the national business Honor Society, during her time at Manor.

Alumni Update

Calling all Graduates...

Since graduating, you may have tried to get in touch with an old classmate only to discover the last address or phone number you had was outdated.

Your troubles are over! Soon, an impressive alumni directory will be available to all Manor College alum, making contacting old friends or classmates as easy as turning a page.

The new Manor Junior College Alumni Directory, scheduled for release in the winter of 1996, will be a comprehensive reference of over 1,800 Manor alumni. Bound into a classic, library quality volume, the directory will include married and maiden names, class year and degree, addresses, phone numbers and business information.

The Bernard C. Harris Publishing Company, contracted by the Development Office to produce the directory, will soon begin researching the publication, compiling data from questionnaires being sent to each alum. All alumni are asked to fill out and return the questionnaire, unless you do not wish to be listed in the directory, in which case, please contact the Development Office in writing as soon as possible.

The new Manor Junior College Alumni Directory will soon make it convenient to reach out and touch someone -- like a fellow Manor College graduate! Look for more details on the project's progress in future Manor publications. ■

Manor's own October fest...

New performers featured in 18th Annual Ukrainian Festival October 1

A long-standing Manor tradition -- the Ukrainian Festival -- comes to campus for its 18th year on Sunday, October 1, complete with some familiar performers and some new acts to help celebrate Manor's rich Ukrainian heritage.

Beginning at 12 noon and ending with the drawing of raffle winners at 5:00 pm., the festival features performances by the Vesna Dance Ensemble, the Soloveyky Children's Vocal Ensemble, the Voloshky Ukrainian Dance Ensemble and the Cheremosh Ukrainian Hutsul Dance School. New performers for '95 include Lviviany, a Ukrainian male choral group, and Bandura-Singer Olya Chodoba.

The Festival also features exhibits of traditional Ukrainian costumes and crafts, as well as craft demonstrations, ethnic foods, children's activities and outdoor music provided by DJ Jerry Mykijewycz.

The Festival is a bargain, with ticket prices of $4 for adults and $1 for children, and parking is free. So, join us on October 1st for a festive Sunday afternoon of traditional dance, song and food!

Manor begins preparations for 50th Anniversary Celebration

It's official!

Manor Junior College will be celebrating its 50th year anniversary in 1997 and preparations are being made to celebrate throughout the year with on and off-campus festivities. Some of the planned activities will include: alumni events, class reunions and a homecoming.

We hope that all our alumni will share in the events of the year. As always, we encourage our alumni to return to Manor to see all the exciting changes that have taken place over the past 50 years.

Since plans and preparations for Manor's Anniversary are underway now, if you should have any ideas for alum-related activities or are interested in helping with any event, please contact Linda Elia Koch, 50th Anniversary Committee coordinator, at (215) 884-2215.
